

A rare pair of George II Hanoverian pattern Sauce Ladles made in London in 1751 by George Morris.

Sold

Description

These rare ladles are modelled in the Hanoverian pattern, with large round bowls. The top of each stem is engraved with an unusual contemporary Crest and display a very good set of hallmarks at the bottom of the stem. Hanoverian pattern sauce ladles are very scarce and seldom come up for sale. They are both in excellent condition, are of a good gauge and have a fine colour.

Length: 6.5 inches, 16.25cm

Diameter of the bowl: 2 inches, 5cm
