

A rare pair of George III Bedroom Candlesticks made in Sheffield in 1792 by John Parsons & Company.

Sold

Description

The Candlesticks are of a very unusual small size and were probably for use on a dressing chest or table in the bedroom. The bases are oval in form and are decorated with reeding, bold beads and a band of acanthus spears. The main shaft and socket display flat fluted decoration and both have a reeded detachable nozzle. The bases are both loaded with mahogany and each is fully marked on the base and the nozzle.

Height: 7.5 inches, 18.75cm

Length of base: 4.25 inches, 10.63cm
