

A very fine George III Serving Slice made in London in 1770 by Thomas Nash I.

Sold

Description

The Slice has an unusual rounded triangular blade with feather edge border. The blade displays a central arched section decorated with scroll work and an unusual pierced raying motif. This section is surrounded by a band of pluming scrolls and flowerheads, finely executed, as would be expected of this maker. The cast handle, also has a feather edge and the end is beautifully chased with scroll work. The handle is attached to the blade with a raying shell moulding. The reverse of the blade is engraved with a contemporary Crest and is very well marked. This piece is in excellent condition and the top end of the blade displays a wavy edge, decorated with a reeded band

Length: 11.25 inches, 28.13cm.

Width, at the widest point of the blade: 3.75 inches, 9.38cm
