

A very rare Rococo Revival Caddy Spoon made in London in 1843 by Charles Reily & George Storer.

Sold

Description

The Spoon has a scalloped bowl gilded on the upper surface and with a Rococo style naturalistic handle formed as two reeded branches conjoining into one terminating in a whelk shell. The underside with ribbed back to the stem descending to the bowl in the form of a large leaf. The spoon is in quite excellent condition, with crisp marks and detailing. This was a design first produced by the most celebrated silversmith of the early 19th century, this being Paul Storr.

Length: 3 inches, 7.5cm.

Width, across the bowl: 2 inches, 5cm.