Description

This Dish would have been used for serving a joint of meat, birds or vegetables and is of a deep shaped oval form. The sides rise to a border decorated with reed and trailing vine designs, interspersed with baskets of grapes and stylised fleur-de-lys motifs. The high domed shaped cover rests on the dish and is decorated with lobing and rises to a gradrooned oval platform top surmounted by an acanthus leaf capped removable cast handle. Each side is engraved with a contemporary Armorial surrounded by a drapery mantling cartouche and the Motto " Sapere Aude – Dare to be wise" below. The Dish and Cover also has an Old Sheffield plate warming base of belled form, with acanthus scroll feet and leaf capped reeded handles. This would have been used to keep the silver dish warm in the kitchens and servery before it was brought to the dining table. The warmer was made circa 1816 by Matthew Boulton, the finest plate worker of the period and his portrait is currently on the £ 50 note. This piece is in excellent condition and makes a very grand statement on the table. It is in excellent condition and is well marked on the silver dish, cover and finial and the underside of the base with the double sun mark, with faces, for Matthew Boulton. The silver is also engraved with the pattern number 865. This piece was part of a unique design silver dinner service, the decorative border almost certainly designed by Lewis Wyatt, which was supplied to Robert Townley-Parker in 1816 on the occasion of his marriage to Harriet Brooke on 21st December, 1816.
